Week in Review

I am still trying to get used to this class. I find it very unorganized and unclear. This week I was lost with some of the assignment's instructions. I am trying to figure out what am I supposed to be working on as a project file on GitHub. I think this class would be better on campus, instead of online. For my call to action assignment, I did a research on YouTube, and I failed the assignment. It is so hard to do school assignments while working a full time job. I definitely need to invest more time on the instructions for the assignments.

Reflect and Connect:

I bought a planner, even though I don't use it often, but I definitely need it for this month's courses. I performed poor due to not following instructions well. I am looking forward to using GitHub, and learning more about it. I finally figure out the instructions for this portfolio course. Creating a portfolio was fun, and I look forward to improving it. I am going to spend more time on the instruction of an assignments.
