3.0 Network Plan

Mohammad Raza Khan

Mobile Development
Class: 20150901

I recently begin using LinkedIn for my professional network. I created LinkedIn profile as an assignment for one of my classes. Now I am glad that I made a LinkedIn profile. In effort to increase my professional network growth, I will be using LinkedIn as my primary network for professional relationship; although, sometimes I use Facebook. I already have a few professional networks in my LinkedIn profile. Please feel to add me in your network.

I recently joined The Guild Hall which is a clubhouse for creative people. The Guild Hall is a place for coders, gamers, and designers. Creative people get together there and have fun, learn new skills, or simply just relax. I am so glad that such place exist in my local. There are people from many different industry in the clubhouse, everyone helps each other learn new different skills.

I would like to attend XDA:DevCon, and Apple WWDC conferences upon graduating from Full Sail University. DevCon is a conference for developers by developers. Developers from across the spectrum gather, and collaborate with other developers. I would like to attend Apple's WWDC since developers from Apple community gather to learn about the future of iOS and OS X. I believe attending to both of these conferences will help me expand my professional network and learn more about the future of mobile.

There are a few things that I can do right now. I can question my friend's dad who is an engineer at Zynga. I will ask him for some advice on getting to where he is now, and some questions about mobile gaming, and the gaming industry. I have already followed a few professionals from my industry. Most of them are social media founders, such as Instagram, and Snapchat. Social media has truly changed the way we communicate through a mobile. I know a few professionals from my industry, I can ask them to mentor me. Mentoring is probably the best way to succeed, and avoid mistakes.

From doing this assignment, I have learned the importance of networking in my industry. Thanks to The Guild Hall, I already got a few professional network. I will use The Guild Hall clubhouse to add more professionals to my network since similar industries are involved there. I will also follow more professionals from my industry in LinkedIn, and Facebook. I will continue to grow my network and learn about new possibility in my industry. If I continue to follow this plan by the time I graduate from Full Sail I will not only have a decent size of network, I will have many open-doors as well.
