Week in Review

This week was extremely busy for me. One of the main thing that I accomplished was getting my work and personal life organized. Since it was the first week after a break, I had to get back to learning routine. Professor Robin gave me some tips during discussion's feedback about getting used to the format of the class, and planning things ahead with a plain calendar. This week I did a research over Snapchat founders. While doing an inspiring research story, I found more motivation to success. This week I had a crazy work schedule. I worked 10 hours a day. It was hard for me to get an assignment done everyday since I have been used to the way of my previous classes when all assignments are due at the end of the week. I would work on my assignments during my lunch break at work. I won't have to worry about it anymore since I have change my schedule.

Reflect and Connect:

I try not to procrastinate, but sometimes I end up doing it due to socializing. For every assignment, I would spend twice the estimate time. I just want to make sure that I get work done right. My main concern was getting a new work schedule. I finally have got it, and I am excited for next week. I haven't improved yet since I was busy getting my work and personal life organized. This week my priority was work first, college second, but next week college first, and work second. Creating a time sheets was pretty easy assignment since I have created them in the past, it easy refreshing, and helpful. I am looking forward to using GitHub, and learning more about it.
